The Toy Boat

(fiction)

Ben and his young friend Tess took a toy boat to the pond. Tess kept the boat in her hand. "I think it will float!" she said. They stand by the land at the edge. Next, Ben set the boat in the water. It did not swim for long. The boat sank at the end of a ripple! "Oh no," said Tess. "I wish it would come back up." Ben said, "We can bring a stick and hunt for it." They poked until the boat popped up. "What a fun thing to do together!" said Ben.

A Letter to Grandma

(nonfiction)

Do you like to send a letter? First, you write with a pen in your hand. Next, you put a stamp on the front. Then you bring it to a box on your street. The land and the king on a stamp are just drawings. Think about who will read your letter. You may wish for a letter back! Some kids write from camp. They tell about a long hike or a cold drink. At the end, they sing the letter out loud to check it. Sending mail is a kind thing to do for a friend.
